

Sinclair Broadcasting apparently has plans to pre-empt programming for "public service" anti-candidate propaganda before the presidential election. This sounds to me as if it is the same as making free time available to President Bush. Please note that I like the President just fine, but this is neither fair nor balanced.

I don't believe it is in the interest of my community to have a giant media corporation so blatantly involved in the election process. I hope that you will publicly note my objections about Sinclair, and I will certainly let them know I don't believe this is a good thing for any political process.
